To whom it may concern

I am writing to give my highest recommendation to a present team member and colleague, Jade Kearns. I have the pleasure to know and work very closely with Jade for the last eighteen months of his eight year tenure at Medscheme and can attest to his outstanding character, integrity and professional work ethic.

As his senior manager during this time, I quickly developed a sense of respect and admiration for Jade. From our initial interactions, it was evident to me that he was a resourceful, thoughtful, and articulate person. I could also see that he was very passionate about his work and that he had a natural ability to motivate, influence and engage others. This passion quickly earned Jade the recognition and respect of his peers and my management team.

After assigning various deliverables and tasks to Jade, I could see that he is a highly focused and driven professional who does not hesitate to assume a leadership role when needed in the team. He consistently has to deal with challenging tasks, complex situations and demanding clients or stakeholders and then performed over and above what was expected of him. Jade is literally one of my few go-to people, in particular, when things go wrong.

I always admired Jade's sense of purpose and discipline, especially in the challenging, complex and dynamic environment we operate. Despite the difficulties and demands of our area, Jade always demonstrates an amazing ability to focus and consistently deliver in a very structured way without losing sight of the job at hand. What makes his performance so remarkable is that during this time he was studying part-time and successfully managed to balance his work and studies without compromising his work quality, taking study leave or requiring overtime. During this time he actually managed to apply the theory from his studies in practice by designing and implementing out of the box solutions when needed.

Based on my experience managing and working with Jade, I can strongly provide a commendation for his character and work performance. I am confident he would be successful with his studies and will continue to make an invaluable contribution to our business. If you have any further questions please don't hesitate to contact me.

Very respectfully,

Shaun Allies
